

Fannie Walker Pace, known by her grandchildren as "Grandma Seay", was quite a folk artist who made her arts and crafts from materials commonly available to her. She would often sell her crafts (such as dolls) to create cash income. She made a pretty bonnet woven out of corn shucks. I was given the bonnet by my Aunt Evelyn, Grandma Seay's granddaughter, who mounted it in a shadow box she built for it. On July 14th, 2011, I gave the bonnet to my daughter, Leah, Fannie's great-great-granddaughter. Here's a photo of Leah holding the bonnet and a close-up of the bonnet.

John Nathaniel Seay (1862-1927) & Fannie Walker Pace (1861-1947)

|

Oakley Vincent (1870-1955) & Penoma Ophelia Seay (1888-1955)

|

Wilburn Glenwood Vincent (1919-1993) & Doris Virginia Warren (1924-2001)

|

Ronald Eugene Vincent (1947-) & Beverly Sue Little (1949-2003)

|

Leah

Ron Vincent

Jan. 2014